GATHER AT NIGHT AROUND CAMP-FIRE

Richmonil Boys Having Great Time in Tents Near Charlottesville.

BASEBALL LEAGUE

Pilgrimage Made to Home of Jefferson-Services Held Sunday.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] [Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
CAMP RICHMOND, NEAR CHARLOTTESVILLE, July 15.—Every boy in camp seems to be having a big time.
Tanned skins, good appetites and sound sleep belong to every camper. A basebail league of four teams has been organized, and a schedule of games is being played. The teams are known as Richmend, Danville, Lynchburg and Portsmouth, the latter being composed of the camp leaders. Athletics and basebail are in charge of Leader C. V.
Robinson, who is popularly known as the "Camp Hercules." Mr. Aubrey LOwen is editor of the Camp Richmond Zephyr.

The camp-fire is one of the most enjoyable features. Each tent takes its turn at arranging and providing for the fire. At the call of the bugle the boys assemble, the flag is lowered, the fire is lighted and the fun begins. Songs are sung; the graphophone also furnishes music; the Zephyr, chronicling the events of the day, also a few roasts and toasts, are read; the program closes with a few serious thoughts and the singing of the camp hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," Then all retire to their tents to fall asleep as the last strains of in the woods about a mile beyond the corporate limits. The police to-night are on the lookout for Jeff Walker, a young white man, suspected of doing the shooting. Several women and a number of men went out driving to-day on a frolic in the country. The party separated and the woman was found unconscious on the ground. She had been shot in the mouth, the ball penetrating the upper lip and longue, and trating the upper lip and tongue, and lodging in the rear part of her throat. One of the party saw Walker ficeing from the spot where the victim was found.

FEATHERSTON DEFEATS OULD

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
LYNCHBURG, VA., July 15.—The Campbell County Democratic Committee met at Rustburg to-day to canvas the returns from the primary held last Thursday for the nomination of various county officers, and declared Howell C. Featherston the nominee for Howell C. Featherston the nominee for the House of Delegates, giving him a majority of five over Eugene C. Ould, the incumbent. The unofficial returns gave Featherston a majority of two votes. The antire vote was recounted to obtain this result. The canvasa gave A. F. Thomas a majority of 127 in the county, which means Halsey's majority in the district was 137.
